BRISBANE FIRE CONSUMES BARN AND BURNS HAY

Three Thousand Tons Lost—Cattle And Horses Saved As Conflagration Lights Up Countryside

Aided by torrents of water pouring down from the skies, 40 firemen from Brisbane, Bayshore City and San Francisco battled vainly, Tuesday night of this week, to extinguish a blaze which destroyed a huge barn on the N. Hansen dairy, located in Guadalupe Valley, west of Brisbane.

The damage was estimated by the owner as between $40,000 and $50,000.

The hay is still burning, smouldering persistently despite thousands of gallons of water that deluged the blaze.

Four volunteer Bayshore City firemen were partially overcome by smoke and had to be carried by fel-

CALIFORNIA BEARS 'TALK OVER' THE COMING BIG GAME

"Talking over" the coming big game between California Bears and Stanford Indians, Stub Allison is pictured giving his team pre-game dope on how to take the Stanford boys. At Stanford the indians, encouraged by their victory over Washington State, are working up a good "fighting mad.' The weather man, however, is the main attraction in the tilt, since about the same time as the game a rainstorm is expected off the Pacific. BE CAREFUL ON WAY TO GAME

Next Saturday the highways of San Mateo County will be crowded with pleasure bound motorists. Traffic authorities are arranging to do everything in their power to regulate traffic.

Are you interested in your own safety?

Ninety per cent of all traffic accidents are caused by lack of consideration of the rights of others. Drive carefully yourself and expect the unexpected from the other fellow. Use your hand signals—the man behind cannot read your mind!

Make a pledge to yourself as you get behind the steering wheel: "I will be 'safety conscious' and I will observe the Golden Rule."—San Mateo County Traffic Safety Commission.

COUNTY SOCIAL SERVICE DIVISION SENDS NOTICES

Sets Forth Important Changes Recently Adopted To Make Law More Effective

Recent changes in the Old Age Security Law, particularly the lifting of liens on real property has caused a sharp increase in aged aid applications. However, certain other changes have thrown a very definite responsibility on relatives of aged aid applicants which should have a deterrent effect.

It is evident that the spirit of the new legislation is to assure aid to the aged person who is actually in need, but it also provides for recovery of such aid from relatives who are unwilling, but financially able, to aid the aged person.

The Social Service Division of the San Mateo County Department of Public Health and Welfare is forwarding to all responsible relatives of applicants a copy of Section No. 2224 of the act, which reads as follows:

"No. 2224. If the person receiving aid has within the state a spouse or adult child pecuniarily able to support said person, the board of supervisors shall request the district attorney or other civil legal officer of the county granting such aid to proceed against the kindred in the order of their responsibility to support. Upon such demand the district attorney or other civil legal officer of the county granting aid shall, on behalf of said county, maintain an action, in the superior court of the county granting such aid, against said relatives, in the order named, to recover for said county such portion of the aid granted as said relative is able to pay. Any sum so recovered shall be credited by the county to the county and to the state in proportion to the contributions of the county and the state respectively.

"Ruling: If the board of supervisors have cause to believe that legally responsible relatives have ability to assist, but are not so doing, they are mandated under this section to bring it to the attention of the district attorney for action."

POLICE WILL STEP OUT AND DANCE

The annual ball of the Peninsula Police Officers Association will be held at the Municipal Auditorium in San Jose, February 12, 1938, for the benefit of the Widows and Orphans Fund of the organization.

A. Terragno, of the South San Francisco Police Department, is president of the association, and Officer Leroy Hubbard of the Atherton Police Department is chairman of the committee on arrangements for the dance.

The ticket sale for the event, this year, will be handled by Tom Kane, of Redwood City, former manager of the Sequoia Theater.

CARPERS STILL CRITICIZE ACTS OF PRESIDENT

Most Of Objections Hinge On Unstability Of The Stock Market

Ever since President Roosevelt launched the life raft which rescued the business of the country from the depression shipwreck and brought it again to the land of profits and dividends the crusted reactionaries of the country have been prophesying disaster. During the periods of their salvation by the New Deal they were for the most part silent. However, as soon as they were back in the realms of prosperity they began the barrage that continues to the present day. Just now, when stocks have receded from the comparatively recent high levels, they again summon the ghost of disaster and are now trying to frighten the people with the absurd notion that a continuation of the policies that saved them before means the destruction of everything.

The mere circumstance that unemployment is on the wane, that many of our leading industries have more orders than they can fill, that the revenue of our whole people continues to go up, has no meaning at all to these critics of the administration. They are doing their utmost to re-establish the domination of fear.

Stocks go up and stocks go down. The fortunate or the skillful make profits either way. The ordinary speculator who just takes a flying gamble may make some money on the bulges and lose some on the recessions. But as long as industry continues to function and people have their jobs, as long as the farmers and the working folks retain their purchasing power and their ability to consume these products, the mutations of the stock market mean little to the average individual beyond the fact that they afford an opportunity for the political panic-makers to beat their breasts and tear their hair and gravely assert that the end of everything progressive impends unless the President and Congress again take orders from the "princes of special privilege."

However, nothing is going to stop the speculation as to whether the next Democratic national convention will tender the nomination to President Roosevelt for a third term. Obviously, he cannot in advance decline a nomination that may never be offered him. Just as obviously, with the world in such a turmoil as it is at present outside this continent, it cannot be forecast whether the American people would permit Mr. Roosevelt to lay down his burden, in view of possible eventualities, should he insist on doing so.

We may look forward with certainty to a lot of expressions of the most positive nature from the commentators, with their exclusive information from "an intimate adviser of the President" and "a White House confidant" who got his inside dope at "a private and intimate conversation."

Jobless Fund Gets Large Contribution

Carl Hyde, director of the State Department of Employment, reports that California employers and employes have contributed $59,451,270 to the unemployment trust fund.

King Norbest II For President's Table

Miss Artella Turley of Salt Lake City, Utah, is pictured as she introduced King Norbest II, choice of more than a million turkeys raised by the Northwestern Turkey Growers Association. King Norbest II recently won the annual association championships and as a reward he will have the honor of gracing President Roosevelt's table for Thanksgiving. The prize winning bird was grown by Fred Wagner of Aurora, Ore., and weighs 30 pounds. The king is shown with a big wishbone and crown, emblematic of his short reign.

MANY APPLY FOR SOCIAL SECURITY NUMBERS HERE

Three Million Cards Issued To Workers In Three Pacific Coast States

Social security account numbers under the Federal Social Security Act had been issued to 2,228,513 California workers at the end of October, James B. Cress, San Francisco manager of the Social Security Board, announced this week.

The national total at that time was 35,366,865, of which more than 3,000,000 had been issued to workers in the three Pacific Coast states.

Applications for account numbers have declined sharply in recent weeks, Cress said, following the peak of the canning and crop moving season when a large number of workers, who are ordinarily not employed at any other time of the year, were obtaining social security cards. In October 73,319 additional account numbers were issued to California workers.

Account numbers are used by the federal government in maintaining the worker's wage record in connection with old age insurance system which covers employers having one or more employes in a commercial, industrial or professional service employment.

Circulate Petitions Against Tax Raise

A strike against high county taxes for 1937-38 was threatened by Burlingame residents late this week.

Headed by R. T. Cropley, business man and property owner, a group of taxpayers is preparing to circulate petitions in all parts of the county in support of the move, it has been declared.

Backed by the threat that no taxes will be paid until promise of a reduction is made, the petitions will demand that the Board of Supervisors act to slash the tax load on property owners.

SAN BRUNO IS TO HAVE NAVAL RESERVE UNIT

Young Men Of Northern End Of County May Be Instructed In Radio Technique

Another link in the nation wide chain of United States Naval Communication Reserve Stations will be added on the Peninsula, with the organization of a new Naval Communication Unit with headquarters at San Bruno.

At present there are about 5000 privately owned radio stations in the United States comprising the United States Naval Communication Reserve. These stations, representing ships in the tactical radio plan, report to a unit headquarters in their vicinity. This office corresponds to a flagship of a group of naval ships. The various radio units then make contact with section commanders, who in turn contacts one of the fifteen naval district headquarters in the United States. The entire plan approximates the fleet radio organization and the same proceedure and methods of handling communications are used as at sea. This elaborate plan functions smoothly in time of national or regional emergency and is constantly available.

Section 2 of the Twelfth Naval District has headquarters at San Mateo and now has five units responsible to it, each made up of from five to twenty-five radio stations. These units, composed of local radio operators, are at San Mateo, Palo

The coming June convention was the chief topic of discussion. Mrs. C. A. You simply carry your alkalizer with you — and use it at the first sign of "upset" stomach. Simply take two tiny tablets of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia when out with others. Or — if at home — you can take two teaspoons of liquid Phillips'. Both act the same way.

Relief is usually a matter of seconds. "Gas," nausea, "heartburn," acid breath — all respond quickly. Just make sure you ask for "Phillips."

Harvard Has Given Exceptionally Good Account of Itself

DEFINITELY that 34 to 6 score that Harvard rolled up against Princeton when the Crimson defeated the Tigers for the first time since 1923, by the biggest margin the Cambridge boys ever recorded over their New Jersey rivals, gives some indication as to the football trend for the next season or two.

How can the man write such things, you ask, when everybody knows years have elapsed since the nation permitted members of the erstwhile gridiron trinity to set its styles? .Right you are, save that I am not claiming that Harvard and Yale, which have been operating on similar lines all season, have any exclusive formula. .I merely am noting that two institutions, usually five seasons back of the latest developments, happen to be up in the forefront for once.

Football has overlong been doctored with quack nostrums. Wherever alumni suffered from too many defeats some long-haired medicine man was called in to prescribe a touchdown restorative. Naturally these panaceas, for all that they were ornamented with fine soothing words, were as useless as the average run of such things. Since they merely titivated the patient pleasurably for a while without getting at the basic ailment, there invariably was a relapse.

That is where Harvard has benefited by the presence of Doc Harlow, a healer of the old school and a gentleman who previously had made the nation sit up and take notice of patients at Penn State, Colgate, Western Maryland and a few other clinics. Using the same common sense remedies which made John Harvard such a robust football fellow from 1908 to 1916, he has achieved results which might even have satisfied Percy Haughton.

Haughton, it may be recalled, was no fancy don of a football coach even though he may be listed as one of the five all-time greats. Aside from the unbalanced line, with which others were experimenting at the time, it is difficult to associate him with any contribution to the so-called science of the game.

He taught his Hardwicks and Pennocks to block and tackle. Wendells and Bradlees were taught how to slant off the tackles, sweep around the ends or smash through the center. When he had a triple threat such as Mahan so much the better. His teams then could kick opponents back to the goal line, make them struggle to gain on the ground what had been lost in the air.

Tigers Had No Defense for Crimson Attack

Harvard played that way against Princeton. There was no hocus pocus to the gaining of 307 yards and five touchdowns. Struck and MacDonald carried the ball most of the time. Struck took the ball and gave it to MacDonald on a reverse or Struck took the ball and went into the line on a spinner. It was as simple as all that.

Most of the time Crisler and the Princeton boys knew what was coming. That Princeton could do very little about it is partly due to the fact the Tiger linemen stand up too straight and are not mobile. As such they were suckers for Crimson forwards who charged low and hard to lift them out of the way. Once through the line Struck and MacDonald, two sturdy lads who run well enough in their own right, continued to have ample assistance. Chief Boston, the blocking back, did as good a down-the-field job as even Knute Rockne could have demanded. When you have two or three others doing similarly capable jobs you must gain ground unless opponents have some marked physical superiority.

Fritz Crisler

Defensively Harvard also was alert, sticking to the fundamental principle of following the ball. The second touchdown was set up when Green picked up the ball after a punt had been blocked on Princeton's 40 and ran to the one-yard line. The third came when Struck ran 18 yards for the score after grabbing a partially blocked punt. The final one resulted in the last two minutes of play when MacDonald ran 40 yards after intercepting a pass.

NOT IN THE BOX SCORE:

THEY met at Baker field while Columbia was practicing. Naturally they talked about football and finally their subject became dropkicking. Both of them agreed that there wasn't enough of it nowadays. Undoubtedly they knew what they were talking about, too. For although neither of them knew the other's name, one was Ralph Hewitt, probably the greatest kicker ever developed at Columbia. The other was Charley Brickley, who booted five field goals one afternoon while Harvard was beating Yale . . . Hewitt, by the way, says that the greatest back he ever played against was Al Marsters of Dartmouth. The best lineman was an unsung tackle from Virginia. "I never did know his name but the guy was in my hair all afternoon."

There's a lad named Ward—he extended Johnny Goodman in the semifinals of the amateur this year—who may become golf's best amateur since Bobby Jones. Anyhow that's a tip from pros who advise watching him through 1939 . . . If the editors of the Daily Pennsylvania don't mind, a mere reporter would like to congratulate Coach Herman and his Penn players on their sturdy comeback against Navy . . . Chick Wergeles, who now publicizes wrestlers and boxers and doesn't care who knows it, was promoting fights when he was only eighteen years old. At the age of fifteen he was managing Young Fredericks, who fought four times for the flyweight title.

Less money was spent on cancer research in the United States last year than was expended on the yacht with which Harold Vanderbilt so diligently defended the America's cup . . . Nomination for the best football official seen all year . . . Austin Lake, the eminent Boston sports commentator . . . Bobby, ten-year-old son of the celebrated boxing writer, Murray Lewin, is such an ardent stamp collector that he already has more than 125,000 of them . . . Mrs. Jack Curley provided the money with which Jack Curley, Jr., is continuing in his late dad's place as a wrestling promoter . . . And what has become of the boys who used to wear all those raccoon coats?

Because he pitched so well for Newark last summer Marius Russo, former L. I. U. star, has been awarded a bonus by Jake Ruppert. Pitt players say Duquesne's line, the seven regulars, is the best they have performed against all year . . . Although Pitcher Harry Kelley of the A's lost 21 games last summer, he beat the Browns seven times.

Dodger Exile Glad to Be With Detroit

Harry Eisenstat, the former Madison High pitcher who escaped from the Dodgers last summer, is happy to be with Detroit. Friends report him as saying, "Mickey Cochrane's Tigers treat you as though you were a person. Over at Ebbets field you don't know whether you're coming or going. Grimes thinks nothing of slapping a $200 fine on a guy and, confidentially, most of the guys get just about that for a season's salary." . . . Benny Friedman, the authority in such matters, says that Columbia's Sid Luckman is not a first class forward passer because he slings, rather than throws, the ball. Says that a slung ball lands in the receiver's arms with a heavy impact and is difficult to hold . . . George Conway, War Admiral's trainer, walked all around the Laurel track looking for holes before he decided to start the colt.

Mickey Cochrane

University of Maryland friends say that Keller, the Newark outfield ace, was paid a bonus of $10,000 when he left the campus to lead the International league in batting last summer . . . Long before he became the New York Jockey club's racing secretary and handicapper, Jack Campbell was a cotton broker down in Louisiana . . . People who should know insist that Yale's Clint Frank is just as good on the court as he is on the gridiron. Back home in Evanston he was one of the schoolboy basketball stars of the Middle West but, possibly because the football authorities do not wish to take a chance with their meal ticket, he has not mingled with the basketball boys at Yale . . . While Man o' War is responsible for War Admiral, the leading money winner of the year, he is second on the list of those siring the most winners. The Porter heads that list for 1937.

Walt Kiesling, 250-pound guard who plays for Pittsburgh, is the oldest veteran in the National Football league. Although he is only thirty-two years old this is his twelfth season . . . The fondest recollection of Clarence Tuffy Thompson, Pirates halfback, is those two kick-offs he ran back for Minnesota touchdowns against Michigan . . . Dave Tobey, the basketball official, is in favor of the new rule eliminating the center jump but suggests that it can be modified to better please the customers. Instead of putting the ball into play immediately after a field goal Tobey recommends a five-second wait so that the fans can have opportunity to applaud a spectacular play or goal.

CALIFORNIA News of the Week

1838 Coin Found by Eurekan

Eureka.—A 10 cent piece, dated 1838, was discovered by Harry H. Selvage, ground keeper of Fort Humboldt, while spading recently. The coin is believed to have been lost by one of the soldiers stationed at the fort many years ago.

Alien Gives Wrong Answer

San Francisco. — The complete frankness of Soriros Andrew Pappageorge cost him his final citizenship papers. Federal Judge Roche rejected Pappageorge's application when the 71-year-old man, asked why he wanted to become a citizen, replied: "I want to get an old age pension."

State Birth Rate Rises

Sacramento.—The birth rate in California in the first six months of 1937 was about ten per cent higher than during the same period last year. State figures released here show the stork made 44,313 visits up to July 1, an increase of 4,232 over his visits in the corresponding period of 1936.

Curfew To Ring Again

Nevada City.—The city council has ordered the ringing of the curfew bell at 9 o'clock at night as a signal for children to leave the streets and go home. The action was taken at the request of the Nevada City Parent-Teacher Association. The curfew will apply to all children under 18 years.

Flames Raze Chinatown

Walnut Grove.—At least four Chinese died in flames which raced through the flimsy buildings of Walnut Grove's Chinatown. About 100 buildings, mostly of light frame construction, collapsed in flaming ruins before fire fighters could reach the scene. Numerous Chinese stores were destroyed. Estimates of the loss ranged from $150,000 to $250,000.

Town Claims Name Priority

Vista.—The California towns of Chula Vista, Sierra Vista, Rio Vista, Linda Vista, and all other "Vistas" would drop the second or "Vista" part of their respective names were they to comply with a suggestion addressed them by the local chamber of commerce. It is contended that Vista in San Diego County was the first community in Califronia was the first community in California to take that name.

U. C. Song Writer Killed

Sacramento.—Word of the death of Harold W. Bingham, composer of the University of California song, "All Hail, Blue and Gold," was received here by his sister, Mrs. John J. Hamlyn, and his mother, Mrs. H. E. Bingham. Mrs. Hamlyn said she was informed Bingham was stabbed to death by a peon ranch worker on his ranch near Buenos Aires, Argentina. Bingham at one time lived in Marysville.

Merriam To Run Again

Oakley.—Governor Merriam unexpectedly announced he would accept a nomination for a second term as Governor of California when he came here to dedicate the start of work on the $4,000,000 Contra Costa County conduit, part of the great Central Valley water project. He had not previously indicated he would seek re-election. The Governor gave the signal which started a cable shovel moving the first dirt of the project. The conduit is to be an open concrete ditch forty-five miles long, running from Rock Slough to Martinez. It will supply industrial and domestic water, as well as water for irrigation, to many communities and a dozen towns in the Sacramento delta region.

1938 Auto Plates To Be Lemon

Sacramento.—State Director of Motor Vehicles Ray Ingels announced that Californians will have lemon yellow colored license plates on their automobiles next year instead of the orange and black plates which have been in use for several years. The change has been made because of the danger of unscrupulous motorists reusing their 1936 plates. In 1936 the figures on the plates were black against the orange background. In 1937, the plate background was black with orange figures and that following past procedure the 1938 plate color arrangement would be the same as in 1936. "A fellow with a little black paint," Ingels said, "could change the '6' to an '8' very easily and have an up-to-the-minute plate."

To Build New Tahoe Resort

Reno (Nev.)—.Sale of the entire Hobart Estate land holdings at Lake Tahoe to George Whittell, wealthy San Francisco sportsman, at a reputed price in excess of $500,000 was announced here. The tract contains nearly 21,000 acres and has about seven and one-half miles of frontage on the Nevada side of Lake Tahoe. Plans are under way for the construction of a large resort and hotel on a part of the lake front property.

THANKSGIVING TALKIES

The Inquiring Reporter, armed with pad, pencil and camera, asks famous people of the show world

THE QUESTION

How do you like best to spend Thanksgiving day?

CHARLIE McCARTHY, the only young man in America who is dummy enough to take wooden nickels: "Ah, Thanksgiving, how I love Thanksgiving! There's so much to be thankful for, too, this year. Last year Bergen was too broke to buy me a dinner and I went to bed awful hungry, but we're in the money now—thanks to me. I've already asked Dorothy Lamour to dinner. Of course Dot can have whatever she wants—I'll start with a whitewash cocktail to kill some of those termites W. C. Fields has been sicking on me; then I'll have a bowl of shavings in milk and an oak leaf salad with sap dressing. After that, a slice of oak log well singed over the fireplace, and for dessert—ah! some fresh air and sunshine in Bergen's new car with Miss Lamour at my side! And at eventide home to show Miss Lamour my magic lantern slides of my great ancestor, John Alden McCarthy."

Charlie McCarthy

BOB BURNS, hill-billy comedian of screen and radio, bazooka blower de luxe and philosopher plenipotentiary: "Thanksgivin' dinner is a real institution down in Arkansas, and I only wish I could be down there this year. Seein' as how I ain't likely to be able to git away from Hollywood, I'm plannin' to invite Aunt Kezzy Moomaw, Uncle Orchie, Uncle Chig, Aunt Poody, Cousin Labe, Uncle Slug, Cousin Hod and Grandpaw and Grandmaw Snelson out here to eat with me. Speakin' of Grandmaw Snelson, she was the first one to teach me the real meanin' of bein' thankful. She figgered we all had somethin' to be thankful for. 'Why, I ain't got but two teeth in my head,' she'd say, 'but I'm mighty thankful, especially on Thanksgivin' day, because they meet.'

Bob Burns

"I know Grandmaw'll enjoy the potlicker I plan to have, whether or not she can get the enjoyment out of the razorback ham.

HELEN JEPSON, beautiful soprano of the Metropolitan and the Chicago City Opera: "My days are ordinarily so carefully planned and faithfully executed that I have no time at all to play cook. But I love to cook, and on Thanksgiving day I dismiss the servants and really do the cooking. It is always turkey, cranberries, sweet potatoes and pumpkin pie. And while I am cooking. George (my husband) is busy carving the pumpkin which is our centerpiece. Sally, my little daughter, loves it, and George always carves two faces on the pumpkin. One side is a smiling face which Sally sees while she is eating and then when the last bite of dinner has been eaten George turns the pumpkin around and there it is—the face that hurts because it ate too much!"

The news in pictures up to the minute, that's us! And even before the minute, if possible! For instance, if we're not getting too gruesome, here is a picture of that Thanksgiving turkey as it will look along about November 30. This will be after the family has been surfeited upon turkey hash, turkey croquettes, turkey soup, turkey salad, turkey sandwiches, turkey creamed on toast and turkey heaven-knows-what, until they hope to goodness they never see a turkey again—until Christmas, that is.

Sentinels of Health

Don't Neglect Them!

Nature designed the kidneys to do a marvelous job. Their task is to keep the flowing blood stream free of an excess of toxic impurities. The act of living—life itself—is constantly producing waste matter the kidneys must remove from the blood if good health is to endure.

When the kidneys fail to function as Nature intended, there is retention of waste that may cause body-wide distress. One may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel tired, nervous, all worn out.

Frequent, scanty or burning passages may be further evidence of kidney or bladder disturbance.

The recognized and proper treatment is a diuretic medicine to help the kidneys get rid of excess poisonous body waste. Use Doan's Pills. They have had more than forty years of public approval. Are endorsed the country over. Insist on Doan's. Sold at all drug stores.

HOW TROUBLE WAS MADE FOR JUMPER

NO ONE had enjoyed the joke on Reddy Fox more than had Jumper the Hare. It had tickled Jumper almost to pieces to think that he who was accounted the most timid of all the little people in the Green Forest should have been able to frighten Reddy Fox. Of course, it was Buster Bear who had given Reddy his first fright and made him put his tail between his legs and start for home as fast as he could run, but it was Jumper who had started after Reddy right at his heels and had made Reddy think he was Buster Bear and so ntened him still more, so that didn't dare stop long enough to rn and see who it was behind him. course, to all who saw them it looked just as if Reddy was running way from Jumper the Hare, and ery one pretended to believe that was. Then they tormented Redy and made his life miserable for im by calling him a coward, afraid f Jumper the Hare, and things like at.

Reddy had fallen into a terrible ge at first and had tried his very best to catch his tormentors. But after a while he saw that the angrier he grew the better pleased were his tormentors. It was just what they wanted—to make him angry. Only Jumper the Hare took care not to have anything to do with Reddy. He kept out of Reddy's way. He had no mind to make Reddy any angrier than he already was. You see, Jumper never goes looking for trouble. No, indeed! He tries his very hardest to keep out of trouble. And so he kept away from Reddy Fox.

Now, Reddy Fox is, as you all know, very, very sly and smart. After a little while he began to realize how foolish it was for him to get so angry, or anyway to show that he was so angry, every time his neighbors plagued him about running away from Jumper the Hare. So, no matter how anger might fill his heart he would pretend not to mind in the least and would try to laugh at the jokes, but all the time would be just boiling inside. Now, at first his anger had been all against those who had called him names and made fun of him, but as he thought it over little by little his anger turned against Jumper the Hare. If Jumper hadn't run after him no one would have laughed at him, for nearly every one had been just as much afraid of Buster as he. Therefore, it was all the fault of Jumper. The more he was teased the greater grew his hate of Jumper, until at last he made up his mind that he would catch Jumper.

Now, of course, the other little people didn't know this. They thought that they were making life very miserable for just Reddy Fox alone. Not one of them ever stopped to think that when trouble is made for one it almost always hurts some one else. They thought that they were making Reddy Fox very miserable, as indeed they were, but it never entered their heads that they were also making life very miserable for Jumper the Hare. But they were. Yes, sir, they were. If they had let Reddy alone he would have let Jumper alone. But as it was, he just grew more and more determined that he would catch Jumper. So he spent all his spare time trying to think of some plan whereby he could catch Peter Rabbit's big cousin. And Jumper, who always was very, very timid, grew more timid than ever and wished and wished with all his heart that he had not played that joke on Reddy Fox, which had made Reddy the laughing stock of the Green Meadows and the Green Forest.

Smasher of Atoms

This giant atom-smasher has been erected near the laboratories of the Westinghouse company at East Pittsburgh, Pa. With it scientists hope to break the atom for the first time. The smasher is a steel-coated tank, 30 feet in diameter, 47 feet high. Inside is an electrostatic direct current generator and a 40-foot vacuum tube. It will generate voltages up to 5,000,000, and will shoot particles of matter through the tube at 100 million miles an hour.

FIRST AID TO THE AILING HOUSE

By Roger B. Whitman

WHAT CAN BE DONE ABOUT DRAFTS

A FEW days ago I called on some friends who live in a two-story house. The stairs come down into one corner of the living room, and after a few minutes it was noticeable that there was a draft of cold air at the bottom. My friends spoke of this; they said that on cold days the draft was so strong that the whole living room was uncomfortable.

The reason for the draft was clear enough. The stairway was open, and heated air from downstairs, being light, rose to the upper story. Chilled upstairs air sank to the floor by its greater weight and ran downstairs just as water would run down. When the heat was on, this action was continuous.

The cure would be in the more even heating of the house; a treatment of the upper story that would check the chilling of the air. This in the first place would be in greater protection of the windows, for they are largely responsible. They should have high quality metal weatherstrips, and be protected by rightly fitted storm windows. The metal weatherstrips would prevent the leakage of cold air into the house through the joints around the window sashes. The temperature of the inside window glass, through the protection of the storm windows, would be raised, and would not have so great a chilling effect of the air in contact with it. It is not enough to have storm windows only on the exposed side. They should be on all sides to protect the inside glass against the low temperature of outdoor air. In addition to this, there should be a layer of insulation in the floor of the attic to prevent loss of heat through the upstairs ceilings.

With these changes, the temperature through the house would be more even. Drafts are created by differences in temperature; the greater the difference, the more rapid will be the circulation and the stronger the drafts.

One common cause of draftiness is the crack between base boards and flooring, especially on the ground floor with a cellar beneath. For the time being, these cracks can be stuffed with anything that is convenient; strips of newspaper, for instance. But for permanence, this crack should be closed with quarter-round molding. There is swelling and shrinking of the base board as well as of the flooring in the change from the damp air of summer to the dryness of artificial heat. When the molding is nailed either to the flooring or to the baseboard, the crack will re-open. To keep the crack closed at all times of year, the molding should be nailed to the studs and other framework within the wall. For this, long nails should be used, driven through the molding at such an angle that they will pass through the space between base board and flooring and into the woodwork behind. Swelling and shrinking of the floor and base board will then have no effect; the crack will remain closed.

START DAY WITH GOOD BREAKFAST

Menus for Fall Days Should Be Carefully Planned.

By EDITH M. BARBER

THE American breakfast of the present day naturally begins with fruit. Nowhere else in the world is there such a variety of fruit to be found. Nowhere else is the quality so high. In many households orange, grapefruit or tomato juice is supplemented by chilled melon, baked apples, stewed pears, figs or prunes. A choice of cereals may be offered for the next course. Occasionally you may like to serve on a chilly morning a steaming bowl of porridge, although ready-to-eat cereals should be offered also.

"Eat your cereal, child," my grandmother used to urge, "it's warming to the stomach and it sticks to the ribs."

No urging of jaded appetite will be needed if the perfume of sizzling bacon has been wafting into the dining room. The term bacon is general, but the varieties of this favorite breakfast meat are many. Three principal kinds are American, Canadian and Irish. The distinctive flavor of the latter, by the way, is due, so they say, to the good rich Irish potatoes and milk upon which the pigs are fed, as well as to the special method used for the smoking. Bacon with fresh country eggs, prepared according to preference is probably our standard breakfast dish. It can be varied, however, with broiled or baked salt mackerel, kipper baked in cream, plump little sausages, which furnish savor for the first meal of the day.

Of course, there will be toast, hot and crisp and well buttered. There may be hot rolls or muffins or toasted English muffins. We may add griddle cakes or waffles for Sundays and holidays when there is plenty of time and when men must be fortified for golf.

And don't forget that jar of marmalade or honey for that finishing sweet touch.

BREAKFAST DISHES.

Rich Muffins.

¼ cup shortening
¼ cup sugar
1 egg
3 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
2 cups flour
1 cup milk

Cream the butter, add the sugar and egg well beaten, sift the baking powder and salt with the flour, and add to the first mixture, alternating with milk. Bake in greased gem pans 25 minutes in a moderate oven (375 to 400 degrees).

Codfish Cakes.

1 cup salt codfish
2½ cups cubed potatoes
½ tablespoon butter
Pepper
1 egg

Soak codfish overnight in cold water. On following morning, pour off water from codfish and shred by placing pieces on cutting boards and using fork. If codfish has soaked for 12 hours it will shred easily. Cook potatoes until tender, drain thoroughly and return to kettle in which they were cooked. Shake over heat until thoroughly dry, mash thoroughly, add butter and pepper and beat until light; add flaked codfish and continue beating until mixture is light and fluffy. Add more salt if necessary. Use No. 16 ice-cream scoop for dipping up balls. Put in frying basket and fry for 1 minute in deep fat (385 degrees Fahrenheit). Drain on brown paper.

Kidney Stew.

1 large kidney
1 tablespoon butter
1 onion
1¼ tablespoons flour
Salt
Pepper
2 tablespoons sherry

Remove fat and sinews from kidney. Wash thoroughly and place in saucepan with one-half teaspoon salt and enough water to cover. Allow it to come to a boil and then simmer for five minutes until very tender. Remove the kidney, retaining the water in which it has been cooked, and cut in small pieces. Slice onion and cook with the butter in frying pan. When light brown add flour, stirring gently; add sherry and 1¼ cups of water in which kidney was cooked. Bring to a boil, stirring occasionally. Add pepper and more salt, if necessary.

Griddle Cakes.

2½ cups flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon sugar
1 egg
2 cups milk
¼ cup melted shortening, or cooking oil.

Mix and sift dry ingredients. Beat egg, mix with milk and stir into first mixture. Stir in melted shortening. Bake on both sides on hot ungreased griddle. Preparation time 7 minutes.

If sour milk is used, substitute 1 teaspoon soda for 3 teaspoons baking powder.

MANNERS OF THE MOMENT

By JEAN

© By The Associated Newspapers

TO BE sure it is always tempting to lay the blame on some one else when you have been gauche. It's especially tempting when you bump into another person on the street or over a bargain counter. You'd like to ask her where she thinks she's going or something genteel like that. But don't let yourself be caught up in the emotion of the moment. If you're very, very mad, just give her a haughty look over your shoulder. It's much better than starting an argument and getting into a brawl. Above all things don't open your mouth. Don't say a word. It is sure to be the wrong thing.

If you're not so terribly mad, however, and think you can control yourself it would be awfully nice of you to say softly, "I beg your pardon." Even if you think she did do the bumping, it would be a nice thing for you to say.

SEW - YOUR - OWN presents a house frock with the heart to be up and doing, no matter how busy you are, how old you are, or how many calories you've forgotten to keep count of. Sew-Your-Own also presents the first doll with a heart (the picture proves it). And lastly it presents a frock with a love interest for a Modern Miss, something usually confined to the movies.

Ideal for Home.

Sew-Your-Own always has had a soft spot in its heart for the Lady of the Fireside, she who cooks and bakes and sews and keeps everything right. Today's house frock for her (above left) is as neat and sweet as anyone could wish. The collar in contrast and the saw tooth edging piped to match, make that difference between this dress and run-of-the-mill. Of course, it's easy to run-up and practically no trouble at all to launder. Better make two

A Doll—a Dress.

The little lady in the center, above, knows her heart's in the right place because Mommy put it there. Dolly Dimples is her swell little playmate and her heart's in the right place, too. Ask your Mommy to send for Pattern 1203 and you'll have a great big surprise in store. Yes siree!

Her Heart Unattached.

Maybe Miss Svelt Seventeen (above right) wears her heart on her sleeve, or maybe she keeps it locked in a refrigerator. Who can tell? But this you can tell: she knows style. She's good to her figure! Her frock, an original Sew-Your-Own design, gives her real distinction — that different-in-the-right-way look. It is the ultimate in chic in rayon crepe with a satin waist front.

Pattern 1405 is designed for sizes 34 to 46. Size 36 requires 4⅜ yards of 35-inch material plus ⅝ yard contrasting.

Pattern 1203 is designed for sizes 2, 3, 4, and 5 years. Size 3 requires 1⅝ yards of 35-inch material for the child's dress. The doll's body, medium size, requires ⅝ yard of 35-inch material. The doll's dress, medium size, requires ⅔ yard of 35- or 39-inch material. One hank of wool is required for doll's hair.

Pattern 1377 is designed for sizes 14 to 20 (32 to 44 bust). Size 16 requires 2½ yards of 54-inch material. The topper in contrast requires ¾ yard of 39-inch material.

ROCKAWAY BEACH PEDRO VALLEY

By C. H. T.

High news of the the week was the official opening of the new No. 1 highway unit from Rockaway through Pedro to Montara, on November 12. Local residents filled their cars with neighbors and neighbors' children, and fared forth over the fine new road. A number of motorists drove as far as Half Moon Bay and remained to celebrate with festive dinner parties. All were enthusiastic in praise of the road and the splendid scenery it has revealed along the coast. A mingling of sea and mountains makes the new highway one of remarkable scenic interest that should bring hosts of visitors motoring down coast to Santa Cruz.

Many are rejoicing that the bus has changed its route from the old highway to the new, scheduling a stop at Pedro crossroads. It's a fine sight to watch the big, substantial Greyhound bus glittering along the straight stretch of highway, so convenient for Pedro residents.

Mrs. Stanley Blume, our postmaster at Pedro Valley, asks this column to express her thanks to all who are patronizing the new post office. Mrs. Blume appreciates their kind co-operation, and she promises the very best, most conscientious service in her power. An interesting development following the opening of the new post office, is the mail received from all parts of the United States, asking for the four-bar cancellation postmark, date and place name, to be stamped on envelopes or cards enclosed. It seems there is a "collectors' value" attached to these, as well as to the new postage stamps. A few applicants for a four-bar impression request some particular color—red, blue, or purple ink. Rather fussy, wouldn't you say? Much of the time postmasters devote to their work is given to the assortment and filing away of "doo-dads," official and otherwise, but compliance with collectors' requests is purely a matter of good nature and kindliness on the part of post office officials.

A regrettable incident took place in Pedro Gulch (which "roared again") last Sunday, when two neighbors clashed over a seepage of water that, allegedly misdirected, flows down over a neighboring garden and lawn. There was plenty of excitement while it lasted on the steep hill, with staunch friends of each man lined up to do battle for him. The observer noted that it exemplified the way world wars are waged, with force, instead of reasonable compromise, leaving the matter at issue still unsettled. Sincere wishes that all may soon be adjusted satisfactorily!

An ancient Indian spearhead was dug up by Mrs. Daisy Waldorf last week, in her garden. The spearhead is considerably longer than the Indian arrowheads that are found more frequently. It is made of unusually fine flint, exquisitely tooled by the warrior-brave who patiently chipped it into shape centuries ago.

Mr. and Mrs. "Tiny" Purser, kept open house last Thursday for their friends and neighbors hereabout. "Tiny", whose nickname comes from the fact that his height is several inches above the six-foot level, is engineer of the road building operations on the new highway. He and Mrs. Purser have made many warm friends in this locality who will be sorry to miss them when they move on to the next road unit, a move rumored to take place soon. The Thursday open house was said to be in the nature of a farewell gesture, and neighbors attended the affair, expressing their appreciation of this fine young couple and their best hopes for Mr. and Mrs. "Tiny," farther along the new road a-building beyond Montara.

Mrs. Peter Haugaard, of Shelter Cove, entertained Mrs. Williams, well known member of San Francisco's musical circles, at a luncheon on Monday.

Little Jackie Dampsey had his first real, honest-to-goodness haircut last week. His mother declares that Jackie sat in the barber's chair and had the time of his life. This young man has been only about two short years on the planet, but he knows just what sort of haircut is proper for a real boy to have.

"Mac" (Pat McCarty) hove into Rockaway one day recently, said a jolly howdy to his friends, and vanished again to his winter quarters at Palm Springs, or elsewhere.

Rough seas and high winds have baffled fishermen on the Rockaway and Pedro waters. The crab season is spoiled, so far, Jim Stewart reports, and very few fish have been caught. Conditions similar prevailed last November, with the same lamentable scarcity of crabs and fish. Better luck when this storm clears up!

Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Cubbin spent the weekend at their cabin at Pedro Valley.

There were many cars in line last Thursday, waiting at Rockaway for the instant when the new road would be open to traffic. The first to roll wheel on the road, however, by special invitation (was the Coastside Mail bus from San Francisco, in compliment to the new Pedro post office and the whole system of service that means so much to dwellers in the coast villages all the way to Santa Cruz.

PLAID KILTIES FEATURE FOR CURRAN SHOW

Musical Autobiography To Be Staged For Entire Week Beginning Sunday, November 21

Next of the important stage attractions in San Francisco will be Billy Rose's "Show of Shows" at the Curran Theater, commencing Sunday, November 21. Matinees will be given on Wednesday and Saturday.

"Show of Shows" is Billy Rose's musical autobiography. It is a two and a half hour revue, based on the high spots of seven of his productions at Fort Worth, New York and Cleveland.

Four of the big production numbers are from Casa Manana Revues of 1936 and 1937, and last year's Pioneer Palace. One is from the Aquacade at Cleveland, one from the Casino de Paree and one from the musical circus at the New York Hippodrome.

The 1936 Casa Manana will be represented by the fast Chicago Fair sequence, with Walter Dere Wahl again as the droll pantomime comedian. The 1937 revue will be represented by "Lost Horizon" and "It Can't Happen Here."

The Honky-Tonk revue from the 1936 Pioneer Palace will be seen intact. Lulu Bates will sing "Handlebar Mustache" and "Lady Known As Lulu." The Tiny Rosebuds, Eddie Eddy of the crying spectacles, Bigelow and Heck (the long and short of it), the Melva Sisters of the musical bottles, Jones and Grannon, the Miller Boys—they are all in it again.

An added feature will be Everett West, in gay nineties plaid, singing his luck song "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling." It was this song, delivered as a solo encore at Casa Manana jamboree last summer, that elevated West to stardom. Now under a three year contract to Rose, he is the principal singer in "Show of Shows," and will do five numbers in the revue.

The Aquacade production number will be a beach sequence featuring the songs "The Camera Doesn't Lie" and "Strangers in the Dark," with show girls parading in X-ray evening clothes.

The musical sequence, closing the first act, will be the "Spangled Dream" finale in which the great spangled clowns of the original Hippodrome show will be seen for the first time here.

Casino de Paree will be a blend of the famed theater-restaurant and last year's Casa Manana Paris number. Hinda Wassau will do her "April in Paris" dance here—the one which prompted the slogan "You Owe It To Your Youth To See Her."

Studio Made Hurricane Filmed To Order At Cost Of $500,000

FIGHTING FOR LIFE in the wild fury of a raging hurricane, Terangi (Jon Hall) aids his wife Marama (Dorothy Lamour) as seen in Samuel Goldwyn's stirring saga of the South Seas, "The Hurricane"

Every year the motion picture producers of Hollywood select their best three or four pictures and send them out to the public as road shows. A road show, in film parlance, is a 22-carat entertainment nugget and for its exhibition only theaters with tradition and exclusiveness are considered.

Last year Samuel Goldwyn decided that "The Hurricane," an extremely popular serial and novel by Charles Nordhoff and James Hall was proper road show material. He set aside a budget of $1,850,000 for making it. Completed now after six months of intensive production at Samoa and Hollywood it is currently presented at the Geary Theater in San Francisco.

While the stars of the picture are Dorothy Lamour, Jon Hall, Mary Astor, C. Aubrey Smith, Raymond Massey and Thomas Mitchell, the technicians deserve a full share of praise, and this includes John Ford, the director. Their principal job with this latest Geary road show attraction was the creation of a hurricane. For understandable reasons, it was impossible for the location unit at Samoa to wait for a real hurricane to come along.

Even in those wind-torn islands hurricanes are infrequent. So the task of making this big wind was left to the studio technicians. The producer and director decided that $500,000 (in real, not stage money) would cover the expense of making this big wind.

James Basevi, who created the fire sequences in "San Francisco," was hired for this task. He erected a hurricane maker of steel and timber on a tower 90 feet high and mounted light release and reserve tanks capable of dumping 130,000 gallons of water at a time down four steel chutes 75 feet from top to bottom. This was for the tidal waves.

For the big wind he bought and rented six twelve-cylindered Liberty motors driving airplane propellors, capable of creating a wind of 115 miles an hour. This sizeable breeze was focused upon the descending waters, to create a hurricane as startling and realistic as any Mother Nature ever brewed.

OLD WIND MILL IS BETTER THAN NEW WAY

The Nantucket Historical Society has had overhauled and placed in operation at Nantucket, Mass., the island's solitary wind mill for use in grinding corn meal the old way.

The society members believed modern high production methods were responsible for loss of flavor in the meal that once established it as an old New England standby.

Fisherman Enjoys One Lucky Break

An acting county judge of Nebraska City, Neb., tempered justice with mercy in the case of Sol Lesser, who was recently charged with fishing without a license.

Understanding the existing circumstances in the case, the judge said: "I know you've been doing your level best to get along without going on relief. But you must buy a license."

The judge fined the man and then paid the fine himself.

Boy Kills Self The Russian Way

A Los Angeles youth twirled the cylinder of his father's revolver and inserted a shell in one of the six chambers. The others were empty.

"This is the way they do it in Russia," he told Robert Bilon, 11, a chum, as he put the muzzle of the gun to his head. "There is one chance in six that you'll die."

He pulled the trigger and the hammer struck the lone shell in the gun. One hour later the youth, Carroll Anderson, 15, died in Hollywood Hospital.

The Golden Text will be: "My soul, wait thou only upon God; for my expectation is from him" (Psalms 62:5). If I regard iniquity in my heart the Lord will not hear me: But verily God hath heard me; he hath attended to the voice of my prayer. Blessed be God, which hath not turned away my prayer, nor his mercy from me" (Ps. 66: 16-20).

The Lesson-Sermon will also include the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Unless the harmony and immortality of man are becoming more apparent, we are not gaining the true idea of God; and the body will reflect what governs it, whether it be Truth or error, understanding or belief, Spirit or matter" (p. 324).

Prosecutor Misses Right Way To Game

Eight miles from his destination, where Assistant County Prosecutor Norman Minor of Cleveland stopped for lunch, recently, with only two hours to spare, he jubilantly told his fellow lunchers that he was heading for Pittsburgh to see the Notre Dame-Pitt football game.

"Don't think you can make it," one of them advised. "That game is in South Bend, Indiana—not in Pittsburgh."

That morning Minor had hurried through his work so as to make an early start for the "Smoky City."

Some Intimate And Interesting Facts Regarding The Personality And Achievements Of The Dean Of Congress

(By Hart Goodrich)

With the opening of the special session of Congress this week, many colorful figures are thrown into the spotlight of public interest. One man, we should all know, is Morris Sheppard, senator from Texas. He has served continuously in the House and Senate for 35 years, longer than any other living member. When Senator Sheppard's present term expires in 1943, he will have had continuous service in both Houses of Congress for over 40 years.

As the Senator, who has witnessed and taken part in more sessions of Congress than any living American, his record is intensely interesting, presenting a picture of the events that have shaken the Nation, disturbed or enlivened it, in this period.

The Dean of Congress is author of the Federal Credit Union Act, which became law on June 26, 1934, and by means of which the purchasing power of the people is said to have increased by more than one billion dollars through relief from exorbitant interest rates on small loans.

In 1926 he sponsored an act for underground exploration by the federal government to determine the extent and location and nature of potash beds in the United States. These explorations made us independent of the German and French potash monopolies.

Senator Sheppard is chairman of the Senate Military Affairs Committee and is the author of a large number of laws designed to benefit the army.

A way back in 1910 he introduced the first bill for an air mail route. The press of that day, not foreseeing the development of aviation, proclaimed the measure visionary and impracticable.

Morris Sheppard is a loyal and unqualified supporter of President Roosevelt and the New Deal program, and as such is bound to play an important part in this extra session and throughout the present administration tenure. His experience in Congressional matters will be a great aid to Senator Barkley, Democratic "whip", who succeeds the late Senator Robinson in that important role.

BAYSHORE PTA

(Mrs. Emily Shaw, Publicity Chmn.)

The Bayshore P. T. A. held its regular Fathers Night meeting, November 13, at the school. President Susie Byrne wishes to thank the members for the large attendance, especially the fathers and men members.

Miss Nellie Taylor presented a splendid play entitled "A Home Saved," written by the children of her classes, which showed that much effort had been put into training the young actors.

The Health Department of the Seventeenth District gave a wonderful Panel Discussion on Health.

At this meeting the program for the year was adopted. These programs are in book form and much credit is due to Mrs. Idaho Gaines, Program chairman, who prepared the program, and Mrs. Leta Riley, Art chairman, who made the covers. Any member who has not yet received a program can get one from Mrs. Gaines. President S. Byrne wishes to thank Mr. Ferguson, principal of Jefferson Union High School, and Miss Robinson and her typing students, for mimeographing these programs, of which we are very proud.

Mrs. Lois Miller, president of the Seventeenth District, read a poem entitled "The P. T. A.—'Our Oak Tree'," which was composed by Mrs. Bea Jeppeson, Study Circle chairman.

Mr. and Mrs. Miller led the community singing, in which the fathers took a very active part.

Mrs. Pasini, Hospitality chairman, served everybody with coffee and cake, having a special "Fathers Night" cake for the fathers' table.

Your president wishes you all a Happy Thanksgiving, with lots of turkey and all the trimmings.

"Human Bite" Cause Of Officer's Death

Severe wounds received when bitten by a crazed negro, who resisted arrest, are ascribed as being the cause of the recent death of Detective Arthur J. DeMarrais, 41, in New York City.

The negro, John Brown, 37, was in a critical condition after being shot twice by the officer after the former's frenzied attack.

The colored man bit the face and arms of the detective and nearly severed the middle finger of his left hand before the assailant's madness was halted.

Poet-Slayer Given Life Prison Term

Michael Milligan

While Michael Milligan, 59-year-old poet, amused himself writing verses in a Redwood City, Cal., prison recently, a jury found him guilty of first degree murder but recommended life imprisonment. The sentence saves Milligan from the death penalty for the slaying on June 8, 1936, of Mrs. Camilla Smith, proprietor of a pet shop in South San Francisco. Milligan was undismayed at the sentence, leaving the scene of his conviction with the remark: "Life begins at sixty."

Educator's Discharge Protested By Unit

The Berkeley Unit of the American Federation of Teachers claimed that the discharge of Victor Jewett, former Eureka school teacher, for his union activities in the 1935 lumber strike "tends to bring the courts into disrepute as agencies of justice."

The charge was made to Paul Richie, chairman of the Assembly committee investigating violations of civil rights in labor disputes.

The State Board of Education, in meeting at Sacramento last week, deferred action for three weeks on the Jewett case.

What Might Have Been

It is when our budding hopes are nipped beyond recovery by some rough wind, that we are the most disposed to picture to ourselves what flowers they might have borne if they had flourished. —Dickens.

HOW OFTEN CAN YOU KISS AND MAKE UP?

FEW husbands can understand why a wife should turn from a pleasant companion into a shrew for one whole week in every month.

You can say "I'm sorry" and kiss and make up easier before marriage than after. If you're wise and if you want to hold your husband, you won't be a three-quarter wife.

For three generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling through" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature tone up the system, thus lessening the discomforts from the functional disorders which women must endure in the three ordeals of life: 1. Turning from girlhood to womanhood. 2. Preparing for motherhood. 3. Approaching "middle age."

Don't be a three-quarter wife, take LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND and Go "Smiling Through."

"I'm—I'm modeling—for the last time."

"Can't you get out of it?"

"No."

"That's decisive. I have a present for you, but this doesn't seem to be just the moment to produce it. You seem to dislike me more than ever. I thought we might play round together. If you can't, or won't, I'll join a bunch of friends who wanted to date me up for some sort of fete this afternoon. They were all excited about a plan to surprise somebody about something. I didn't listen; I was anxious to locate you. I'll see you tonight before I leave, Brooke."

The sky was like a huge sapphire; the sunshine was rose-tinted; the ocean a tumbling mass of emeralds. A fragrant breeze, a mere suggestion of a breeze, ruffled the bright orange flame-vine on top of the high Spanish wall which enclosed three sides of a garden open to the sea, a garden filled with tables set in gay borders which were filmy frocks; there were faces above the tables, faces under large hats and men's faces with no hats at all.

From a Moorish gallery drifted male voices singing to the accompaniment of guitars as Brooke stepped from the automobile which had brought her to the charity fete. Carstons Inc. had staged the wedding party of the style show with meticulous attention to detail, even to sleek shining cars to bring the bride and bridesmaids to the ornate grilles which were the garden gates. Reporters were there and camera men, hordes of them, all the frills and appurtenances of a wedding except groom and ushers.

Madame Celeste, chic in black and pearls, was flushed with excitement under her make-up; her French accent was noticeable for its absence as she whispered last instructions:

"Wait until the singers stop, girls. The moment the orchestra strikes the first note of the wedding march, start. Don't get flustered. Don't get out of step. You're all lovely."

A violin sighed a soft note. Others joined until strings and harps and woodwinds swelled into the wedding march from Lohengrin.

Bridesmaids, their lips scarlet, their eyes shining between dark mascaraed lashes, passed between the iron grilles and moved slowly up the ribbon-outlined aisle, dragging their gold slippers a little in time to the rhythm of the music, and the swish of their taffeta slips. The first two were dressed in billowy rose-orange net; behind them at a short distance came two more in a lighter tint, then two in soft yellow, then a fourth pair in ivory, and then the bride in snowy satin so soft in texture that it trailed in ravishing folds. Slowly she came with head slightly bent, eyes presumably on the mass of white Transvaal daisies and stevia she carried.

Brooke felt the surge of motion as everyone stood up—a tribute to Madame Celeste's stagecraft—the wedding procession was so perfect that habit had brought the audience to its feet. She must keep her attention on the girls in front—why had Mark Trent come to Palm Beach—this heavenly music made one all trembly inside—would she never reach the spot where she was to turn—three stairs to mount before she reached it Something pulled at her eyes like a magnet. She looked up. A group of men was standing near the steps. All wore white suits with blue shirts and identical ties of Java print; each one had a boutonniere of deep blue bachelor buttons in the lapel of his coat; all were smiling broadly, she could feel their repressed excitement. Mark Trent was with them. His face went colorless with surprise as his eyes met hers in the instant before she bent her head again. Why was he here? Was this the fete a bunch of friends had urged him to attend?

The stairs. One! Two! Three! She was up. The bridesmaids had deployed to face the audience—she had almost thought "congregation"—the orange-color frocks were at the ends of the semi-circle, the tints paled till they came to the snow-white bride. Her veil had been thrown back. Time for her to turn. The music swelled into a paean of triumph. It looked miles to the iron grilles beyond which stood Madame Celeste. She was safely down the steps! She must smile.

"Ready!"

She heard the whispered word, saw the men in white who had been standing beside the stairs hurdle the guarding ribbon. One offered his arm to her. Urged huskily:

"Quick! Let's put it through."

She looked up. Mark Trent! All the bitterness and pain went out of her heart. It was as if a great wall she had built between them had crumbled to a heap which she could cross. In a flare of gorgeous happiness she slipped her hand under his arm.

"It would be you," she said, and smiled in the second before they were in step with the music. Behind her she heard peals of laughter, girls' voices, men's voices. Then applause. A woman called:

"How priceless! The men are coming out with the bridesmaids!"

Brooke stopped at the intricate iron grille. She withdrew her hand from Trent's arm, walked back a step or two, tossed her bouquet among the bridesmaids, waited to see it scatter in four parts, turned, and ran out through the gateway to the limousine.

Reporters and camera men flocked after her. Machines clicked. Mark Trent fairly lifted her into the car. He blocked the door from curious eyes as he bent forward and kissed her on the lips. It was a tender kiss. There was reverence in it, there was a promise in his eyes, but laughter in his voice.

"That's an important part of the ceremony, isn't it? Hold out your left hand, Brooke." He pressed a ring on her finger. "This is what I had for you."

He turned away as Madame Celeste hurried up.

"Back to the salon!" She gave the order to the chauffeur with the air of a queen on location. She pushed aside billows of tulle, and sank into the seat beside Brooke who hid her left hand in the satin folds.

As she drove home from Carston's Inc. dressed in the tweeds in which she was to travel, Brooke kept looking at the ring on the third finger of her left hand.

"It Would Be You," She Said.

The soft flush of a tropical evening was stealing forward when she entered the patio, the glamour of night was settling over the dark mystery of the sea. The afterglow turned the masts of the distant yacht to red gold. Birds twittered sleepily. The fronds of the royal palm stirred gently. A man who was pacing back and forth came toward her quickly. Brooke's pulses which had been none too steady broke into a quickstep.

"I thought you would be flying through the air by this time, Mark," she tried to say indifferently.

"Did you think I would leave my bride?"

She avoided his disturbing eyes.

"Bride! The wedding party turned into a riot, didn't it? It was fun. Great theater."

"Just a minute, dearest. Stop and get your breath while I explain my part of it. I told you that I met some men I knew this morning. They were all excited over a plan to surprise a wedding party at a fashion show with groom and ushers; they were a lot of boys all set for a lark; made me feel young just to listen to their fooling. When I found you wouldn't play round with me I joined them. I didn't know till the last minute that they'd picked me for the groom—not a tactful selection, and I refused the honor. But when I saw you coming up that aisle—well, they would have had to battle over my dead body to take my place. Forgive me, will you?" His caressing voice sent a ripple along Brooke's veins.

"There's nothing to forgive. I thought it was fun."

"Then we'll let that ride for the present. We've got to hustle. I have a message for you from your mother."

"From Mother! Where did you get it? How?"

"You dear! I phoned her ten days ago."

"Phoned! Not to England."

"To England. It's being done some, you know."

"Of course I know. Don't, don't be so wooden."

"Wooden!" His laugh sent Brooke's hands behind her to clasp each other. "First I was a silent policeman, now I'm wooden. That also we will take up later. I didn't know what you had written your mother about the new will. I thought she should understand that your income was the same as when she left; otherwise she might not dare spend money to rush home for the premiere of Sam's play this week."

"It is not the same as when she went away."

"Your mistake. It is. She arrives in New York tomorrow."

"Tomorrow! I don't care what it costs. I'll fly."

"I thought you'd feel that way. I have reservations for us for the night plane." He glanced at his watch. "Throw some things into a suitcase, air-weight, remember. I have a car outside. We have just time to make the flying field."

Was she real, was anything real, Brooke asked herself, as the automobile burned up miles and the broad road flowed away from it. It was alive enough now; the Palm Beach world was hastening to eat, drink, and be merry. Above, through the warm black velvet dome, dripped a million or two stars. A magic night. Shining automobiles, gracefully long and low; others, silent, powerful, fast, provided glimpses of gay wraps, films of chiffon, glints of lame, smooth heads, waved coiffures, sparkling jewels, the sombre black of evening clothes. Chairs propelled by boys with faces dark as chunks of obsidian held gayly appareled occupants. She glanced at Mark Trent beside her. Was he real? As if he had divined her question, he touched the ring on her left hand.

"Like it? Is it big enough, gorgeous enough?"

"It's perfect."

"Then you'll wear it always, won't you? You know that I love you, have loved you from the moment I caught you up from in front of that roadster, that I want you to marry me, don't you? You didn't think for a minute that I would leave you behind here, did you?" His hand tightened on hers.

He caught her close. His eager, ardent lips on hers stopped her unsteady voice.

The car drew up with a jerk. The driver pulled open the door.

"We made it, boss—" He stopped. Put his full-moon face into reverse. Reminded over his shoulder:

"You've got three minutes. Boy waiting for your bags. If you've decided not to go—"

Mark Trent jumped out. Turned to Brooke.

"Coming?"

She put her hand in his.

WIN First Honors AT TROY · BIG ROCK
LILY LAKE · WHEATLAND PLOWING CONTESTS

Using Firestone Ground Grip Tires, Paul Stiefboldt made the highest score for any one meet, with 92½ points out of 100. He also had the largest number of points for the four contests, 356½ out of a possible 400.

Carl Shoger had the highest average score per contest with 90 out of 100 possible points, using Firestone Ground Grip Tires.

Clarence Shoger won first place in the Young Men's Class in each of the four contests on Firestone Ground Grip Tires.

FIRESTONE Ground Grip Tires won sweeping victories this year in the plowing contests at Troy, Lily Lake, Big Rock and Wheatland, Illinois. In the plowing contests, as on the farms, more tractors were equipped with Firestone Ground Grip Tires than all other makes of tires combined. And these all-purpose tractor tires scored 3500½ points out of a possible total of 4100 for the four contests.

Why do plowing champions choose Firestone Ground Grip Tires? The answer is:

GREATER TRACTION — Takes a deeper, broader bite into the soil. Has positive self-cleaning action.

GREATER STRENGTH — Resists the strain of heavy pulling because every fiber of every cord is saturated with liquid rubber by the patented Firestone Gum-Dipping process. Two extra layers of Gum-Dipped cords under the tread bind the tread and cord body so solidly together that we guarantee they will not separate.

GREATER SAVINGS — Saves 25% in time and up to 50% in fuel over steel-lugged wheels.

GREATER DRAWBAR PULL enables this tire to do more work in a given time.

Specify Firestone Ground Grip Tires when buying a new tractor or any wheeled farm implement. And, for your present equipment, ask your nearest Firestone Implement Dealer, Tire Dealer or Firestone Auto Supply & Service Store about the economical Firestone Cut-Down Wheel Program.

Jefferson Football Closes With Loss

Fighting against heavy odds, Jefferson lost its final game of the season, which would have given them second place honors in the Peninsula Athletic League.

Bad breaks were part of the cause of the loss of this game, but the greatest drawback was the absence of Simpson, who was injured during practice last week. Throughout the season Simpson proved himself a hero with his long runs that often resulted in Jefferson scores.

Up against the undefeated P. A. L. champions, the Indians fought sternly and hard throughout the entire game, but bad breaks hit them from the start till the final gun sounded.

Twice in the first quarter San Jose scored, first through a fumble on the Indians four-yard line, then again through an intercepted pass. Just before the end of the first half San Jose started a long march to the Jefferson goal to leave the Indians on the short end of a 21-0 score.

The Indians came back in the second half, fighting mad. They made the spectators stand up and take notice when they started two long drives which carried them deep into San Jose territory. Both times they seemed to lack the power to crash the Bul'dog line in order to reach pay dirt.

Just before the final gun, Jefferson was in possession of the ball deep in their own territory. An attempted long pass was intercepted by a wide-awake Bulldog, who ran the necessary yardage to a goal.

"Surprise Party"

You might say it's been that way
Since Time itself begun.
You might think, and slyly wink,
It quite a lot of fun.
To see his nose up in the Ozone
Would bring about a fit.
To see him strut, become the butt
Of all the village wit.
You wonder why the look so sly,
The walk with springy step.
You wonder, too, no thoughts of blue
And he's so full of pep.
A voice has spoke, to him awoke
A dream to realize
For he's to be a "Pop," you see.
Well, so am I surprised!

low firemen to safety. Once free from the dense smoke, they revived quickly and rejoined the battle against the spectacular fire, which lightened murky skies so that the glow was visible throughout all of northern San Mateo county and southern San Francisco.

The fire was discovered at 8:15 in the evening by Joe Cascio, a cowboy. It apparently had been started by spontaneous combustion, according to Fire Chief William Schmidt of the Brisbane department.

The fire fighters concentrated their efforts on saving nearby dairy buildings. Ten horses stabled in an adjoining barn were terrified by the flames and were released by farm hands into a pasture only with difficulty.

Thousands of motorists and spectators were intrigued by the startling brilliance of the fire and caused a traffic jam on Bayshore highway as well as overloading telephone calls with inquiries about the blaze.

The Hansen Dairy, located a mile north of Brisbane, is one of the largest in San Mateo County.

None of the more than 500 head of cattle at the dairy were harmed.

YOUNGSTERS ARE DELIGHTED WITH MARIONETTES

Federal Theater Project Stages Famous Old Play With Puppet Performers

Five hundred chlldren shouted with glee, Saturday afternoon of last week, when the marionette unit of the Federal Theater Project made its first presentation of Washington Irving's famous old tale, "Rip Van Winkle" on the stage of the Alcazar Theater.

Of the entire audience it is likely that not one had ever before had the opportunity in their young lives of seeing the beloved old character that has delighted generations of young folks for more than a century. It was evident that many had never even heard of the man who went up into the Catskills and dozed for twenty long years only to awaken and find himself transformed from a husky young lad into a pathetic, doddering oldster, friendless and alone. It was a gala matinee for the kids and a better one for the adults watching and listening to the children.
